

Abstract

The present invention solves the problem of integrating multiple copies of a gene of interest by homologous recombination into well defined positions adjacent to conditionally essential genes in a bacterial host strain chromosome, which already comprises at least one
5 copy of the gene of interest in a different position.

09928847.081301
FOET80" 4882660